

Regulatory Specialist
Wek'èezhì Land and Water Board
Northwest Territories

The Wek'èezhì Land and Water Board has been established to regulate the use of land and water within the Wek'èezhì management area in the Northwest Territories.

The residents of Wek'èezhì, predominantly the Tlicho People, have strong, traditional ties to the land, water, wildlife and environment. Ensuring responsible, sustainable use of the land and water is of paramount importance for the people and the region.

The Regulatory Specialist is responsible for coordinating reviews and submissions made to the Wek'èezhì Land and Water Board for land-use permits and water licenses.

The successful applicant will have a relevant degree with related experience and an understanding of land and water use regulation processes; proven communications, presentation and interpersonal skills; the capacity to quickly build lasting relationships based on trust and mutual respect; and is seen as fair and responsive. Education and experience equivalencies will be considered.

This challenging opportunity includes a competitive compensation and benefits package. Interested candidates are invited to apply in confidence by June 5, 2018 to the attention of:
